CHAPTER VI

CONCLUSION AND FURTHER RESEARCH

6.1 Conclusion

The development of database technology and better information systems today are very helpful in terms of obtaining the data and making the mapping of the data obtained. So that is already within their mapping to facilitate the goal of monitoring the amount of destitution in Indonesia The hope that one day with the advancement of technology and science can be mapped not only on the poor areas but able to provide information to the individual level of the poor.

6.2 Further Research

- The program can be extended with the data on destitution show more update again.

- This program can continue to display data in a broader destitution for example on the terms of the town in Indonesia.