

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION

In this thesis, the writer focuses in psychoanalysis approach especially Sigmund Freud's theory in Daddy's Little Girl novel. One of Sigmund Freud theory which called Death Instinct is use in this thesis. Robson Westerfield, the main character in the novel, has aggression behavior which happened by several factors. Robson Westerfield, since he was a young boy doing his aggression to his friends at school. He did his action based on one purpose, satisfaction. He felt satisfied when he hurt until killing.

According to theory of Sigmund Freud, Robson Westerfield's aggressive behavior is triggered by internal and external factors. Internal factors are deindividuation, frustration, and also problem solving. And the external factors are alcohol and drugs, and weapon.

The writer will include about Id, Ego, and Superego from Sigmund Freud aggression theory. Id cannot be used here because the Id is human trait that carried since they were born. The writer will list the Ego and Superego.