

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION

Chapter V of this study consists of two parts. They are conclusion and suggestion parts. In the first part, the writer gives the conclusion of the study that has been previously analyzed on Chapter IV, whereas on the second part, the writer gives some suggestion for an extended research.

5.1 Conclusion

The writer got some examples of youth slang in this study and also analyzed the examples denotatively or connotatively based on the similarity between the dictionary meaning and the usage meaning. The field which was taken from this research are Sociolinguistics and also Semantics. Sociolinguistics explained the function of youth slang in the society which was mainly used to communicate with others. This was closely related to the use of youth slang among the youths. Meanwhile semantics explained the meaning of youth slang denotatively or connotatively. There were 26 youth slang have connotative meaning which have different meaning as their literal meanings.

5. 2 Suggestion

The writer hope this study can be a stepping stone for the future studies related to word analyzing studies. As for many of youth slang are not originally Indonesian words and also many of them are actually formed as a kind of shortened Indonesian words. It must be interesting to see further on how actually youth slang are formed. Here the writer suggests making other extension studies by analyzing youth slang according to its word formation process. If this study analyses youth slang from its denotative and connotative meaning semantically, seeing youth slang from their word formation will be related into morphological study.
