CHAPTER 5

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

In this chapter, the writer draws the conclusion on the study about the syntactic analysis of English taglines in car and computer products found in Wikiquote.

5.1 Conclusion

Based on the analysis, the writer concludes that the use of phrases in syntactic analysis has been dominantly found in car and computer products. Then, the results of the analysis can be seen below:

- The syntactic analysis of English taglines in the car products shows that noun phrase and imperative sentences have been found as the most dominant.

- The syntactic analysis of English taglines in the computer products shows that noun phrase and imperative sentence have been found as the most dominant.

- The syntactic analysis of English taglines in the car and computer products shows that there is none of the samples use adverbial phrases.

- There are six kinds of taglines which are included in other analysis because they cannot be analyzed by the theory of sentences and phrases.

5.2 Suggestion

The writer is grateful as she can finish this study. After finishing it, the writer concludes that this study is not the perfect one. On the other hand, she hopes that it can be useful for other students who are interested in analyzing taglines and their relation to syntactic analysis. For the reasons above, the writer recommends others who have interest about taglines can make another study or analysis better, deeper and more complete.