ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I have struggled throughout high school, only to thrive once I went through university. This is very important to acknowledge for me, because without the people who helped, both directly and indirectly, I would not reach this point.

Sincere gratitude is hereby extended to the following people who never ceased in helping until the very end of this research process:

1. Dr. A. Rachmad Djati Winarno, as research supervisor, thank you so much for willing to answer the abundance of questions I always consult you with – when I do come in for consultations, that is. Thank you also for being an incredible lecturer throughout my undergraduate years. I am deeply grateful for your openness for discussion, understanding, and patience.
2. Dr. M. Sih Setija Utami, M.Kes., as Dean of the Faculty, and as one of my best lecturers while being a student here at Unika Soegijapranata Semarang, I thank you for your endless support.
3. Esthi Rahayu, S.Psi., M.Si., my academic mentor, thank you for all your support and guidance throughout my university education. Thank you for putting up with me all of these years. Thank you for being one of the kindest, caring, and most patient mentor.
4. Suzie Handajani, who pushed, and pushed, and nagged, and never failed to remind me everyday to get my thesis done. Thank you so much for being my main source of motivation throughout uni. This is especially for you. I hope I make you proud.

5. To Tata, Kezia, Esther, thank you so much for being my friends, I know I'm not the easiest to be friends with, but you guys stuck around for four years. Thank you so much. To Meila and Laudi, thank you for ensuring I napped well, ate well, and went out enough throughout my research. To Oda, for being the most understanding patient friend anyone can ask for. To Mas Dwiki, for willing to have discussions with me and listen to me complain. To Mila, for always supporting me throughout my young adult life. To Agung, thank you for your endless company, love, and support.
6. To all my lecturers, every single one who taught me during my university education, thank you so much for everything. I never knew anything enough during high school to be able to ask anything during class so, thank you for letting me ask so many questions, thank you for giving me answers to all those questions, thank you for your patience and guidance. I can not thank you enough.
7. To everybody who has been in organizations and/or committees with me, thank you for helping me learn, for helping me grow.

The purpose of this research is to explore the factors influencing how descriptive and prescriptive stereotypes towards women's sexuality are formed and upheld through the framework of the symbolic interaction theory. A phenomenological approach is conducted upon 4 individuals (2 females and 2 males), by way of a semi-structured interview, to explore their experiences that factor in the development and perpetuation of descriptive and prescriptive stereotypes towards women's sexuality. Through analyzation methods of transcription, content analysis, and thematic coding, it is discovered that Javanese women and men may share certain stereotypes, the development and perpetuation of said stereotypes differ according to influencing factor such as cultural background, familial influence, and social influence.

Keywords: gender, descriptive stereotypes, prescriptive stereotypes, women's sexuality, Javanese.
