ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

There is no more beautiful word than praises and gratitude to Jesus Christ, who has determined everything in His hands, so no hair falls without his permission. Thank you for Jesus and His grace that the author can complete this thesis entitled: The Use of Upgraders and Downgraders in Line Chats. I would also like to say thanks to my parents and my beloved sister Cynthia for all the support and love they gave me. They are always my alarm to finish my study in college. I love them.

I would also like to say thank you profusely to my major sponsor, Dra. Cecilia Titiek Murniati, Ma., Ph.D., for all the help that had been given, either directly or indirectly, from the preparation until the completion of this thesis. Thank you for willing to guide me lovingly, even though sometimes I can not change meaningless words into meaningful words. I want to thank my co-sponsor too, Dr. Heny Hartono, S.S., M.Pd., for also helping me and correcting my mistakes patiently. Thank you for teaching meaningful things while writing this thesis.

Special thanks to my beloved boyfriend, Giovanni Christian Djeen, for always being my wings when I could not fly high through the storm. His love strengthened me throughout my college years. Thank you for your patience in listening to my happiness, anger, sadness, and mood swings during the process of thesis writing.

ABSTRACT

Asking for help is a common occurrence that happens either directly or indirectly. People use various strategies in asking for help. In this research, the writer analyzed request strategies that university students used in Line chats using by university students using Blum-Kulka's theory. This study aimed to find out the kinds of syntactic and lexical downgraders and upgraders in Line chats. The participants in this study were students of a university in Central Java Semarang. The writer analyzed short messages containing requests for help via the Line chat application and found that the most commonly used strategies were downgraders. The writer also found that the downgrader strategy was dominant because students wanted to respect each other and understand the listener's condition.

Keywords: request strategies, downgraders, upgraders, Line chat

ABSTRAK

Meminta bantuan adalah kejadian umum yang terjadi baik secara langsung maupun tidak langsung. Dalam situasi ini ada berbagai macam strategi yang digunakan dalam meminta tolong kepada orang lain. Dalam penelitian ini, penulis menganalisa strategi meminta tolong yang digunakan para mahasiswa dengan menggunakan teori Blum-Kulka. Responden dalam penelitian ini adalah para mahasiswa universitas swasta di Semarang. Penulis menganalisa pesan singkat yang mengandung permintaan tolong melalui aplikasi pesan Line untuk menemukan jenis downgraders dan upgraders yang digunakan antar mahasiswa. Penulis menemukan bahwa strategi permintaan tolong yang sering digunakan adalah strategi downgraders. Penulis juga menemukan bahwa strategi downgraders lebih dominan karena para mahasiswa ingin saling menghormati sesama dan mengerti kondisi pendengar.
