

CHAPTER 5

CONCLUSION

5.1 Conclusion

This study aims to analyze the personality of Geo Seo Jin in the drama Hyde, Jekyll, and Me. Freud's theory analyzes Geo Seo Jin who has multiple personalities. According to Freud, the behavior results from conflict and reconciliation of the three personality systems (id, ego, and superego).

The id in this drama is shown by Robin's good nature and likes to help others. Because basically, Robin is the hidden nature of Geo Seo Jin. The ego in this drama is shown by Geo Seo Jin's arrogant, selfish, and cruel nature. Likewise, the superego in this drama is shown by the nature of Geo Seo Jin to maintain his image and position in the Wonderland group.

Robin's hidden nature is because Robin is considered to interfere with Geo Seo Jin's career. Because the stereotype of people who have business and success is arrogant, selfish, cruel, and self-centered. If you have a weak nature in business, then this will be detrimental. Just like Robin's kind and helpful presence, he would not be able to stay in business.

Geo Seo Jin's dual personality is caused by his childhood trauma when he was kidnapped. Moreover, his guilt made him create a new personality, namely Robin. The second personality or Robin appears when one of them is in shock, unconscious, and the turn of time (Geo Seo Jin is there in the morning, and Robin is at night)

5.2 Suggestions

Through this study, the writer hopes that future researchers concentrate more on analyzing a film based on what happens in real life. The upcoming researcher needs to be more sensitive to personalities disorder because it is a real thing that is happening in real life. However, the upcoming researcher needs to narrow down on what kind of personalities to analyze.
