TOMORROW'S GLOBAL LEADERS

INTERNATIONAL EXPOSURE

Higher Education

Countries and companies need more highly educated, informed and skilled populations to compete and thrive in the world today (Kaur, 2020).

Higher education is called to effectively help students achieve their best through their personal development.

Personal development is a lifelong process by which someone can access their skills and qualities to achieve their maximum potential (Maslow, 1970).

- Giving students direct international experiences during their study shows an effective effort of preparing students to become future's global leaders.
- International experiences give students a lot of benefits for their personal development.
