ABSTRACT

There is a phenomenon that comic from Japan which is written in English is translated in Indonesian language. This study is done to investigate two things: the method of translation used in translating the English version of Kaichou wa maid-sama! 1 and the kinds of distortions found in the English translation of Kaichou wa maid-sama! 1? This is a quantitative study as the writer does not use any data in numbers and there is only one comics investigated. By comparing the data got from both version of “My Sweet Kaicho”, the writer finds that the methods the translator used in translating “My Sweet Kaicho” are faithful (19 data), free (153 data), idiomatic(10 data) and communicative translations (64 data). Mostly, the translator translates the text in the comics freely as the highest number is found in free translation.. The sentences that are translated without any distortion is 65 data which are less than the distortion translations, 57 overtranslations and 116 undertranslation. This means that in translating “My Sweet Kaicho”, the translator has made some distortion and there is one sentence which is not translated.

ABSTRAK

Ada suatu gejala dimana banyak komik jepang yang ditulis dalam bahasa inggris diterjemahkan dalam bahasa Indonesia. Penelitian ini dilakukan untuk mengetahui dua hal yaitu metode yang digunakan untuk menterjemahkan komik Kaichou wa maid-sama! 1 dan juga penyimpangan terjemahan dalam komik tersebut. Penelitian ini bersifat kuantitatif karena data yang digunakan tidak berupa angka. Dengan membandingkan kedua versi komik tersebut ditemukan bahwa penterjemah mengaplikasi terjemahan tetap (19 data), bebas (153 data), ungkapan (10 data) and komunikatif (64 data). Angka terbesar ada pada terjemahan bebas. Kalimat yang diterjemahkan tanpa penyimpangan ada 65. Jumlah ini lebih kecil dari jumlah terjemahan yang menyimpang yaitu 57 overtranslations and 116 undertranslation. Ini berarti dalam menterjemahkan "My Sweet Kaicho", penterjemah telah membuat penyimpangan dan ada 1 data yang tidak diterjemahkan.
